PRESENTATION

Olga Dovbysh is a postdoctoral researcher at the Aleksanteri Institute, University of Helsinki. She has been studying various aspects of Russian media sphere. Her research interests revolve around state-media relations and media control, local and hyperlocal journalism and digitalisation of media. From January 2020 she works in the project 'Sustainable journalism for algorithmic future', which studies challenges of algorithmic journalism in Russia and beyond.

ACTIVITIES IN FRANCE

During her stay at the CERCEC, Olga Dovbysh had the opportunity to collaborate with Françoise Daucé on the research on data journalism studies. Then, research on digitalisation and media control in Russia was the key component of a collaboration between. There were also discussions with the organisation of a joint research seminar on 'past and present on environmental communication in post-Soviet countries' in collaboration with Marc Elie, Marin Coudreau (CERCEC) and Perrine Poupin (CNRS). From Finland the seminar should be represented by FLOWISION project (Olga Dovbysh, Mika Perkiomaki) and HELSUS (Viktor Pal).
